

Not every employee in our company has a mobile phone. How can we still record working time?

On the one hand, it is possible to record working time via the application. If employees have a laptop or a PC, they can log in and record working hours and breaks.

If an employee is working outside the company and still has to record working hours on a daily basis, a column record can be used. For example, a team goes to a building site. The team is defined in the Danielle Software. One of the team or even the boss, who goes with them, has a smart phone and records the attendance for the whole team via the Danielle Talk chat function.
